

Examiner Hewitt agreed that these elements are not shown by Rackson, suggested that the Applicant submit a claim clearly stating these elements, and stated that an additional search would be required to consider the patentability of such a claim. The undersigned further pointed out that Rackson also fails to show a consolidated auction monitoring report for a number of different items offered for sale by the user, the use of tracking fields in the auction monitoring report, and certain other elements recited in the original claims. No agreement was reached regarding allowable subject matter.
